which we bought 10 years ago, was much smaller.	John is someone with	whom I can never agree.	That's the woman whose husband works in my office.	David is someone	I've known all my life.	I can't stand people who shout into their mobiles phones.	The building in	which my mother was born is still standing.	Our neighbour Betty, whose husband you met earlier, is a talented singer.	The house	I was born in has been pulled down.	We visited a factory where they produce glass ornaments.	That's the house	Tim and Sarah want to buy.	We'll buy what we need at the supermarket.	I'm looking for the book	I was reading this morning.	The old factory, which closed last year, has now been pulled down.	It's a story in	which all the main characters are animals.	This book, which was written years ago, is still popular.	We can buy everything	we need at the supermarket.	Our old house,
